

Snowmobiling....."The Future is in Your Hands"

Will public and private lands remain open for our recreation in the future? Long term use of the lands is no longer certain. Only the unified voice of the snowmobile community will help to guarantee the continuation of our sport.

Let ACSA be your voice for Snowmobiling on National Issues!

ACSA, the American Council of Snowmobile Associations, is THE national organization that was formed to unite the snowmobile community and:

- To serve as THE national watchdog organization that monitors and acts on snowmobile issues across the Snowbelt;
- To establish relationships with other user groups with similar concerns and challenges;
- To serve as a clearing house for members to access information critical in addressing local issues;
- To provide educational resources for safe and responsible snowmobiling to assists clubs and associations in their decision making process;
- To provide information to increase public awareness, understanding and appreciation of the sport of snowmobiling;
- To work with and educate federal government entities and diversified coalitions to monitor legislative and regulatory initiatives that will encourage the equitable treatment of snowmobiling, funding and maintenance of snowmobile trails;
- To provide a common, collective voice in defending public land access, Federal Regulations, local challenges, snowmobile safety issues and promoting snowmobiling as a family sport.

Snowmobiling is enjoyed by millions and must be represented by a strong national organization. ACSA is that organization.

Our future success is dependent on help from grass roots snowmobilers like you!

ACSA is THE national organization that is committed to the future preservation of our recreation. This organization is dependent on resources through partnerships within the entire snowmobile industry.

ACSA promotes safe, responsible riding and snowmobiling as a family sport.
